About the Presenter

Since becoming a hospice nurse in 1981, Maggie Callanan has studied, taught and written about death and dying. This includes the unique and symbolic communication of the dying, which is often labeled as “confused language” and consequently often ignored by professional and family caregivers. Addressing medical, personal, emotional and spiritual aspects of life’s final journey, Maggie delivers practical, no-nonsense answers to difficult questions tempered by humor, wisdom and compassion. She is the co-author of “Final Gifts: Understanding the Special Awareness Needs and Communication of the Dying” and author of “Final Journeys: A Practical Guide to Care and Comfort at the End of Life.”

Learning Objectives

After the conference, participants will be able to:

- List the characteristics and after effects of the Near-Death Experience (NDE) and demonstrate behaviors which would support the experiencer.
- Describe behaviors associated with the concept Near-Death Awareness and compare to the NDE.
- Identify the seven main stages of the process of dying from diagnosis to death and grieving.
- Integrate techniques and concepts in helping patients plan for their dying.
