Vickie Haverkamp
Chaplain

Vicki has cared for people for decades, first as a nurse and parish pastor and now as a hospice chaplain.

“I wish people knew about hospice is that it’s not the last thing you do.

It is not that you are giving up; instead, it is allowing a team of caring, loving experts to come into your life at a most vulnerable time to allow you to shine in the last pages of the last chapter of your life. I always wish people had signed up sooner. I always hear from people, “I wish I had signed my loved one up much earlier.” The care, the comfort, the peace ... I work with the best people in the world. I am a very blessed chaplain. I love my job, and I get to do what I love.”

“Don’t wait. The time will never be just right.”
